

“Marathon is much more than our employer. They’re our inspiration.”

As a breast cancer survivor, I’m doing all I can to keep my daughter and grandchildren from getting this disease. That’s why I’m proud to work for a company that gives so much to so many great causes, such as Susan G. Komen for the Cure. But it doesn’t stop there. Another wonderful example is Impact Player Partners, an organization that provides emotional and financial support to wounded and disabled veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan. Another is a program that raises money for needed school supplies on Bioko Island, Equatorial Guinea. And this is only the very beginning of all the things that Marathon does. Needless to say, we love working here.

Giving back. That’s Marathon.
